A WOULD-BE PENSIONER.

At a club dinner in New York recently, an examining surgeon related the following incident, showing how the arrears act developed pensioners out of sound and undeserving men. During the war he was surgeon of an infantry regiwas surgeon of an infantry regiment went into battle he observed, sitting behind a big tree, at a safe distance from the fighting line, the captain of one of the companies.

"What are you doing here captain of one of the companies.

"The mot feeling well," replied the efficer, in a dolleful voice.

The surgeon was too busy looking after the wounded to stop and inquire as to his complaint. A few weeks later the regiment again got under fire, and the surgeon found the same captain skulking behind a barn.

"Hellcl" sick again?" he exclaimed.

"Well, the fact is, doctor, I'm not reactly sick. I may at well own up that I'm a coward. There is no help for it. It must be constitutional. Now, doctor, what's to use of my staying in the srmy work you help me get a discharge?"

The surgeon thoughthe was doing the country a service when, a few days afterward, he recommended that the man be discharged on the ground of general disability. Head nothing of the captain until sixteen years later, when he received a letter from the Pension Office informing him that Captain Blank had applied for a pension from the date of his muster-out, and that as he, as surgeon of his regiment, had criffled to the disability, would he kindly inform the government so to the nature of the disease from which the officer suffered? The surgeon regiled that the captain is complaint was chronic and incurable cowardice, not contracted in the line of his duty, but constitutional. The captain's name did at a fine of the dist, but constitutional. The captain's name did at a formable office, and the regions of the contracted in the line of his duty, but constitutional. "That is all nonsense my friend," said the physician. "Anyone in this city can learn how with an outlay of 50 cents for a bathing suit. I am speaking more particularly of the women and girls. Most of the boys know how, and if they do not they ought to be ashamed. But girls do not, as a rule, although I would wager that nine out of every ten would like to. Now, the free baths are very nice and clean, and patronized by a good class of women. The ized by a good class of women. The water is from three and a half to four feet high, the place is better than a beach, for among their own sex women soculd not mind awk wardness, and there are always good wardness, and there are always good swimmers present to learn from.

"The way to go about it? Well, in the first place, there is the bathing suit, which should be made of some light cotton material. One plece combining blouse and trousers, is all that is required. The garments should have short sleeves and be cut rather low in the neck. A broad band attached to a rope a yard long is necessary to fasten about the body. First, the swimming scholar must learn the motions thoroughly, observe the moveming scholar must learn the motions thoroughly, observe the movements of an expert swimmer, then
